

Solutions to Homework Assignment 13

MATH 345-01

Section 29, Page 84

1

1. This is pretty much a contrapositive of the theorem. Suppose that f has a constant value throughout some neighborhood contained in D . Since a neighborhood is a domain, the theorem implies that f is constant throughout D , in contradiction to our assumption. Thus there can be no neighborhood in D on which f is constant.